COLORADO

Pikes Peak and Downtown Colorado

The Colorado College is set in the beautiful city of Colorado Springs. The location of the college is the second most popular reason, next only to the unique experience of learning under the block plan, why students choose to come here. There are four lovely seasons here, and the city has a lot to offer its residents which include the students, faculty, administration, and staff of CC.

(above) A familiar and admired sight to all students at CC is Pikes Peak. This photograph was taken from the Garden of the Gods, a popular tourist attraction and hiking place for students. It is also a common location for Geology classes to do field work and a study spot for individuals who want to get away for a little while.

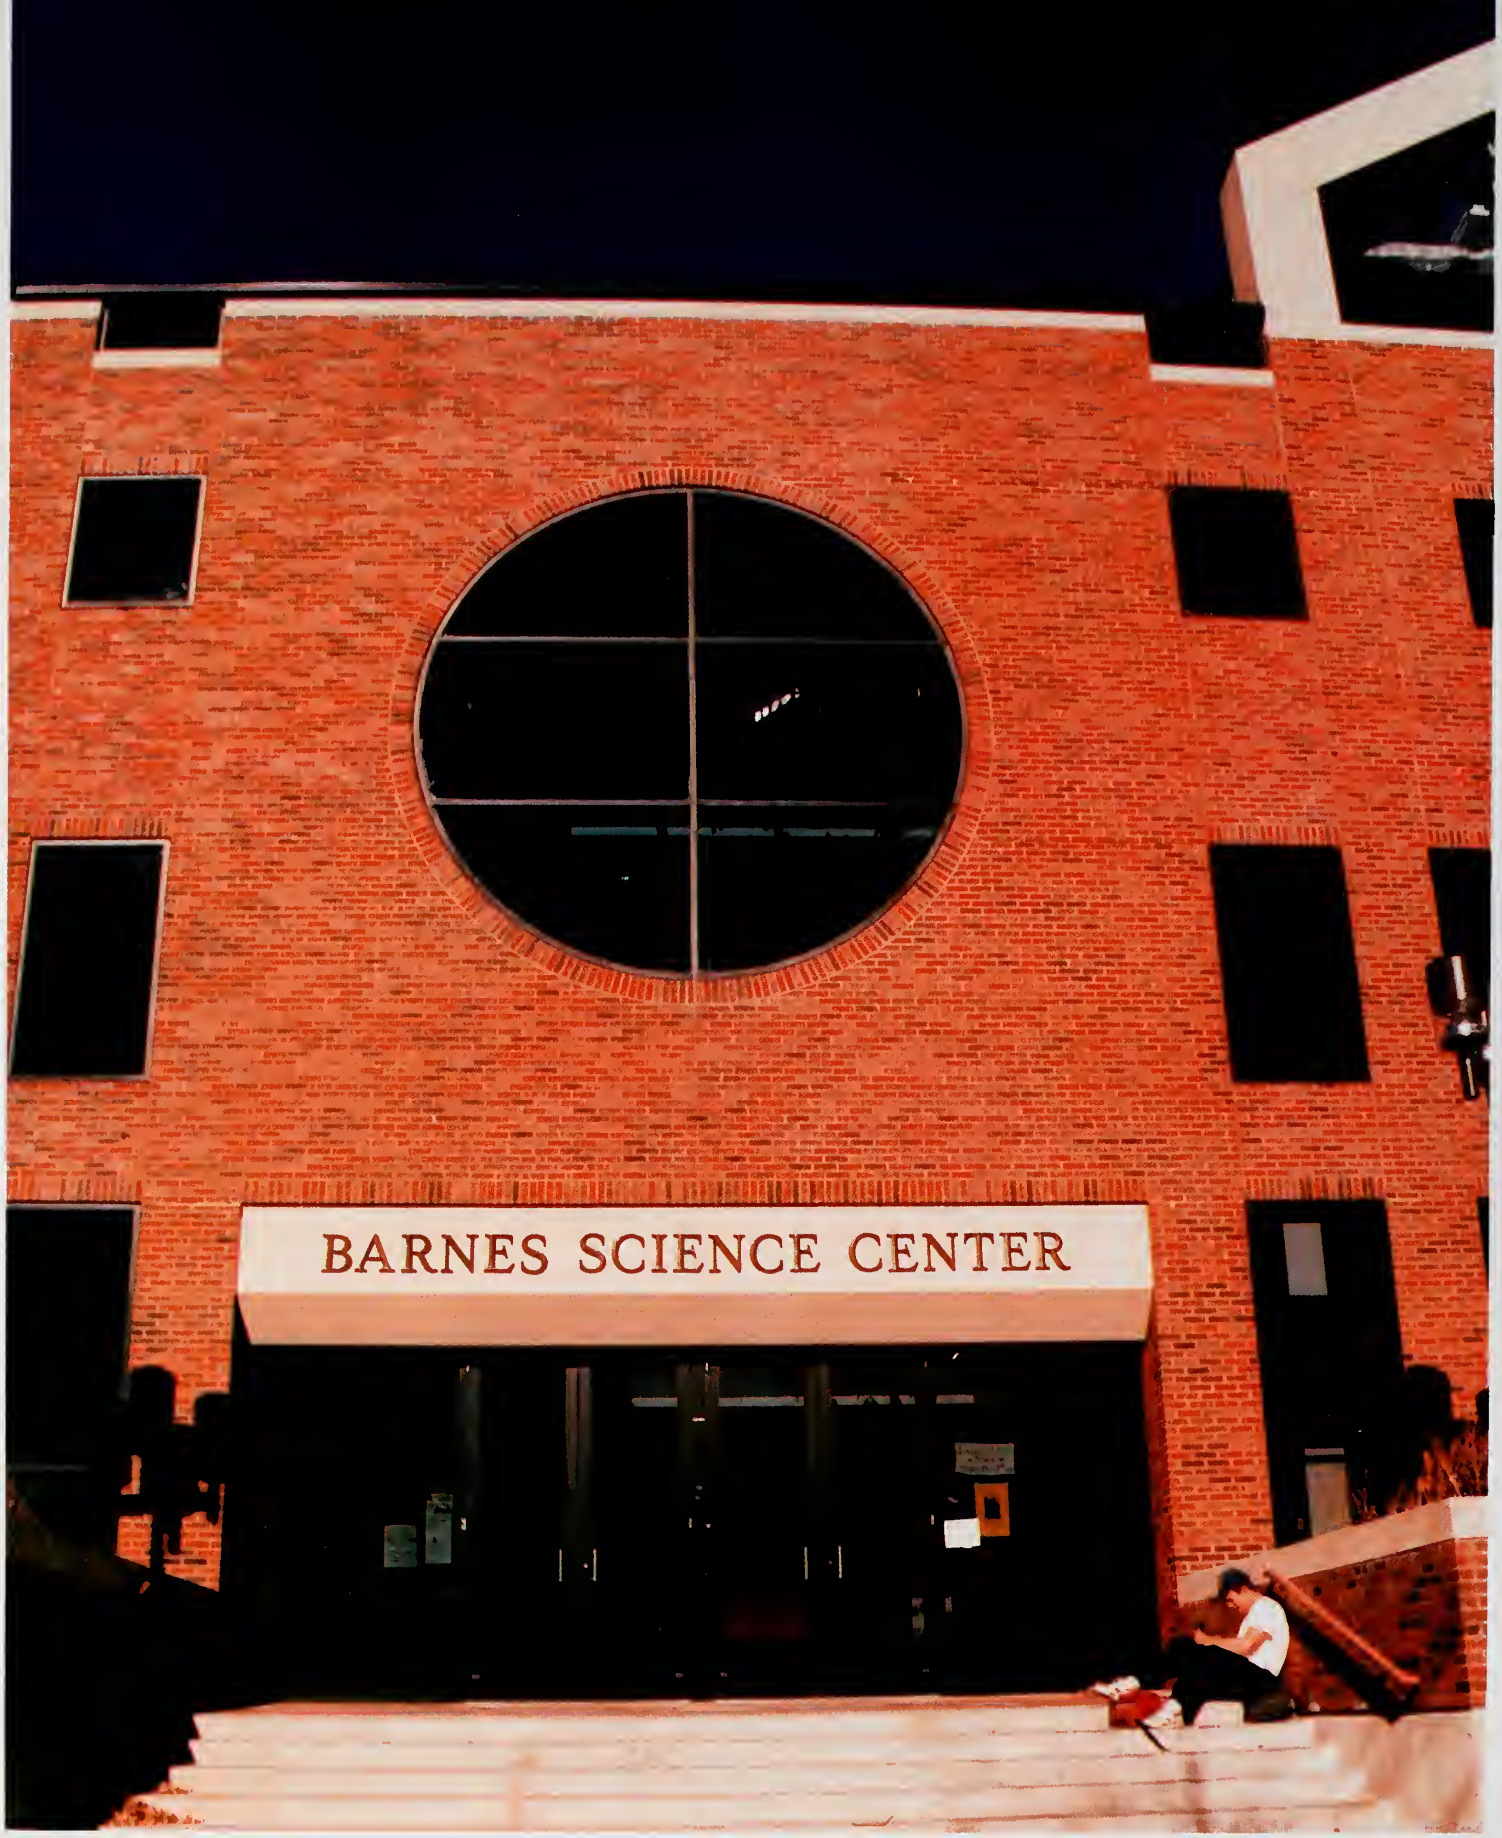

Springs

(right) The sunrise over Pikes Peak, again taken from the Garden of the Gods. Notice the attractive city lights in the background.

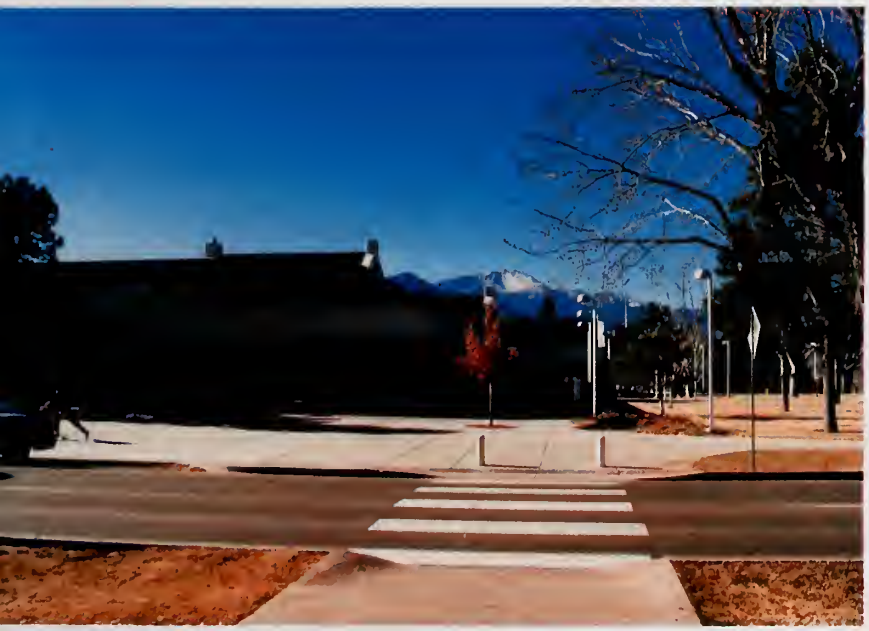

(above) The New Science Building which was built in 1988, was officially named the Barnes Science Building, after Margaret and Otis Barnes, in the Fall of 1990. The Barnes Science Building houses the Physics, Chemistry, Biology, and Anthropology Departments at CC. It also contains an herbarium and a small animal colony for Biology experiments, as well as a large telescope and observatory for astronomy classes and the astronomy club. The chemistry department has a lot of modern equipment for their labs, too. There is also a Barnes scholarship established just for Chemistry majors at the college.

The Catalyst

The Colorado College Campus

A Community within the City

(above) Shove Chapel is the building for religious celebration on the campus. It is also the place where traditional ceremonies throughout the year - Opening Convocation, Honors Convocation, and the Baccalaureate Service - are held. A nondenominational protestant service and Catholic mass is provided on Sundays. This year, Shove has also been the meeting place for various minority groups on campus, as well as the location of prayer vigils, candlelight services, and peace rallies.

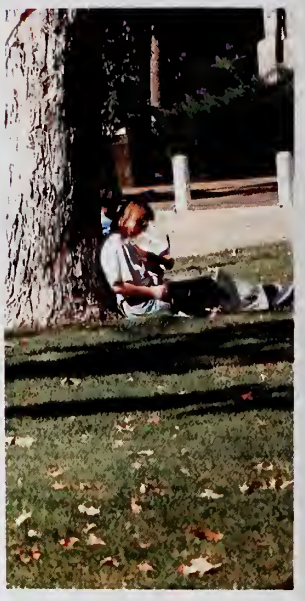

(left) Worner Center is the place where all students go eventually. The information desk is located there, and meals are served and mail is delivered for the students. Many groups have their weekly meetings in this building and the bookstore, and other student services such as the Career Center, the Center for Community Services, the International Studies Office, the Office of Minority Student Concerns - new this year - and the Leisure Program office work out of here.

(right) Palmer Hall is the main academic building and the most popular choice to have classes held in for students. Palmer was named for General William Jackson Palmer, the founder of Colorado Springs. Palmer Hall was built to block the trolley line that useed to run up Tejon Street, and General Palmer did not want a trolley line running through the middle of his campus. The front doors were made wide enough for a trolley car to fit through as a slight to the city. The Geology, Mathematics, Economics, History, and Psychology Departments, have their offices in Palmer Hall.

COLLEGE

A student experiences another case of EMS - Empy Mailbox Syndrome. Most students find that a great way to alleviate this disease is to send letters of their own to friends who will respond to them later.

Above: 1990 saw the installation of a new automated teller machine in the Worner Campus Center.

Right: Colorado College students organized a letter writing campaign to support the soldiers in the Persian Gulf during the Iraq war, though protesting U.S.'s presence in Saudi Arabia.

Below: Though they didn't go anywhere for the long weekend, two students enjoy their block break by just relaxing and recuperating after an intense period of study and finals.

Theatre at CC

There are many oppurtunities for working in the theatre at Colorado College - from acting to directing to stage designing. The two main produers at CC are Theatre Workshop, a student run organization, and the Drama and Dance departments. Other productions at CC this year include Woycek, A...My Name is Alice, Bartok and Chocolate Lingerie, and numerous one acts produced during blocks 5 and 8.

The Silver Cord

Love's Labours Lost

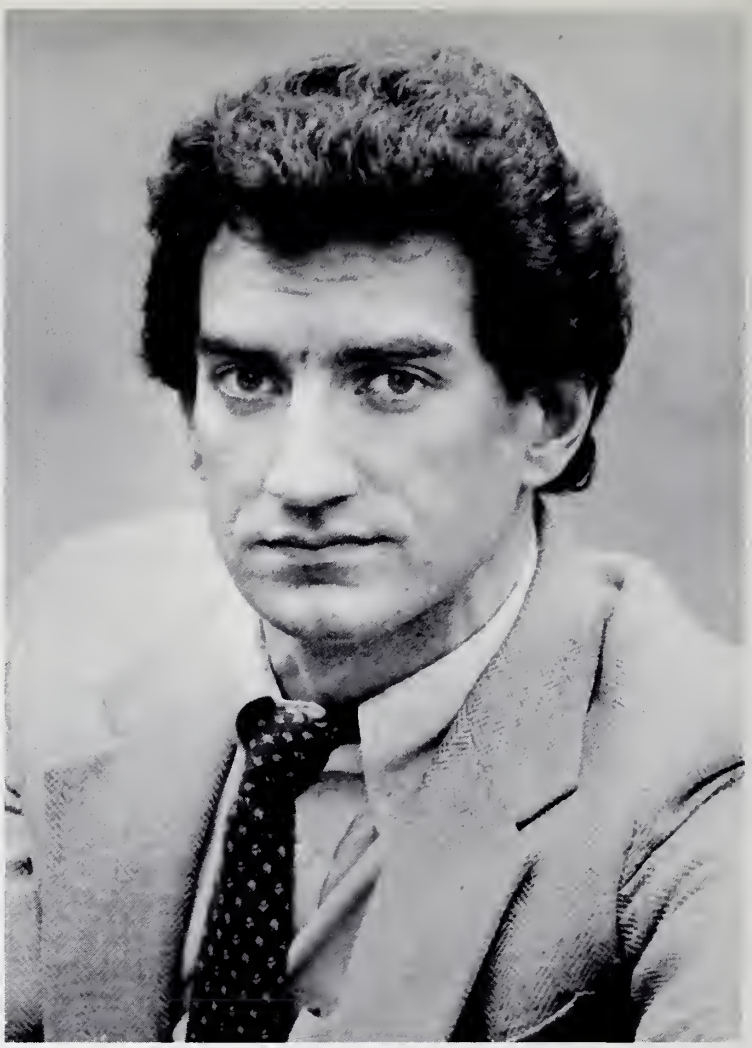

1991 Symposium on The Future

The Colorado College examined the topic of the future for its 1991 Symposium. Our future is full of frightening uncertainties along with enormous promise and potential. The symposium underscores CC's continuing commitment to the importance of intellectual engagement, not just in the classroom, but outside of it as well, for the joy and liberating effects that knowledge and understanding provide. The symposium was well attended by students, faculty, alumni, parents, and members of the Colorado Springs community. Only time can tell where the future will lead us all.

Right: Gregg Easterbrook, a CC alumnus ('76), is a public policy journalist who has received three distinguished writing awards for pieces on the future of NASA in the wake of the Challenger disaster, U.S. environmental policy, and the economics of health care in America.

Below: Laurie Anderson is America's most recognized performing artist with uncategorizable multi-media performances who has delighted audiences since her emergence in the early eighties.

Below Right: Clarence Page is a regular, syndicated columnist, who has won the Pulitzer Prize for Commentary, and has received an award for his outstanding coverage of black people and the black condition.

Left: Leon Lederman, is a Nobel Prize Winner in Physics ('88), and recently retired as director of the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory to teach undergraduate liberal arts students at the University of Chicago.
Below: Ruth Sidel, is professor of sociology at Hunter College of the City Universidy of New York, and has lectured widely in the U.S. and in other countries on women's issues and social policy.
Below Left: Bernie Krause composes music from unadultered nature and animal sounds in the hopes that he is increasing people's awareness of the diversity and fragility of the natural world.

Other notable participants included Richard Bernstein, Barry Commoner, Harlan Ellison, Stuart Ewen, Robert Heilbronner, Fred Kent, Myron Krueger, Standish Lawder, Andy Lippman, Amory Lovins, Walter Meador, Bruce Murray, and Stuart Newman.

Seniors John Roach, Josh Cramer, and Will Lawrence take their hats off to their fellow 1991 graduates for their hard work over the past four years and wait to throw them up in the air to celebrate the final accomplishment of having completed their undergraduate degree at Colorado College.

The senior class came from all over the United States and the world, and got to know each other well over the process of studying and study breaking together. Though they came from different backgrounds, they found a common goal to pursue together. Now they will go their separate ways again, but hopefully meet again soon and stay in touch.

Commencement excercises were held on Monday, May 13th, at 8:30 a.m. in the Armstrong quadrangle, with a President's reception immediately following the ceremonies. Dick Cheney was the speaker and Bruce Casson was the senior speaker.

Academics

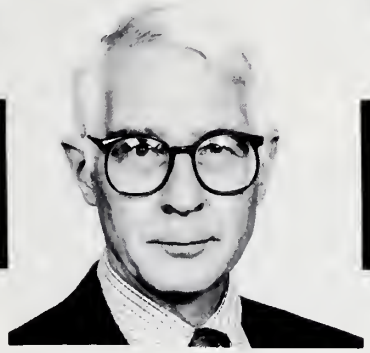

A student works on a program for his computer science class over in the Barnes Science Center's new computer room facilities. There are computers in all of the major residence halls, Worner Center, the Library, Armstrong Hall and in Olin. Macintoshes, and Texas Instruments and other IBM compatible computers are available for general student use with word processing, quattro, pascal and other programming languages available on it. The school is also hooked up to a electronic mail system so that you can use computers to talk to other people.

National News

Left: The U.S. Senate rejected a constitutional amendment against flag burning on June 26, 1990. The Senate voted 58-42 in favor, nine short of the required two thirds majority needed. The house rejected it with Democratic leaders, saying that it amounted to placing limits on freedom of speech.

Below: On April 22, 1990, an estimated 200 million people all over the planet celebrated the 20th anniversary of Earth Day as activists pleaded for the rise of a new "conservation generation" to care for the fragile environment.

Opposite Page

Top Left: The Cincinnati Reds, given no chance to beat the Oakland Athletics, needed only four quick games to win the World Series in one of the biggest upsets in baseball history.

Top right: A legion of clipboard toting counters sought out shelters, subways and steam grates on March 1990 in the broadest attempt ever to find out the extent of homelessness since it became a national disgrace in the 1980's. The U.S. Census Bureau is spending $2.7 million to tally homeless in Americans.

Bottom: The southern U.S. spent most of the Spring wringing itself out after weeks of flooking turned entire towns into muddy lakes. Those states suffering the most damage were Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, and Mississippi.

International News

U. S. Tanks reach Saudi Arabia: The U.S. Army's heaviest ground firepower reached Saudi soil in August 1990, for deployment behind Arab forces manning the front line in the standoff with Iraq. The war with Iraq and Saddam Hussein, over its takeover of Kuwait, began and ended during the second semester, 1991, and set the tone for U.S. - Middle East relations for years to come. By mid-October of 1990, more than 200,000 U.S. troops had been deployed to Saudi Arabia.

Chamorro Victory: Violetta Barrios de Chamorro, publisher of Nicaragua's opposition newspaper, led a 14- part coalition to victory over Sandinista rule despite political inexperience. The general election was monitored ny more than 3,000 international observers, including the United Nations, the Organization of American States and a delegation led by former U.S. President Jimmy Carter.

Bush and Gorbachev Summit Agreements: Celebrating the fruits of their summit diplomacy, President Bush and Soviet President Gorbachev shook hands and signed a sheaf of agreements, including a conditional trade accord. During the June 1990 summit, the leaders also embraced a preliminary deal to cut long-range nuclear arms.

Nelson Mandela World Tour: Massive crowds turned out for African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela at every stop on his six-week anti-apartheid tour of three continents. Mandela, one of the worlds most celebrated political proisoners, was freed by the South African government in February of 1990, after 27 years on prison.

World Cup Soccer: German fans chanted and screamed their pleasure on July 8, 1990, when West Germany dethroned Arentina and won the world cup, after a match taht had grown ugly with fouls in the second hald finally ended. The Argentines took the loss as well as could be expected, shaking hands with many German youths at the stadium. Many Germans headed into central Rome to celebrated the victory that came after the frustration of losses in the previous two World Cup finals.

German Reunification: World leaders welcomed a united Germany into the international community on October 3, 1990. In a message to governments worldwide, Chancellor Helmut Kohl pledged that Germany would never again pose the territorial claims that marked Germany from its initial unification in 1871 to its defeat and division in World War II. The unification came 11 months after the berlin wall fell in a peaceful revolt that cast aside communist East German overlords.

Residential Life

RHA sponsored many events, often composed around a theme, for the campus community throughout the year, both in their individual hall councils and the large council composed of representatives from all of on-campus residents. One of these events was a Halloween party put on by Bemis and McGregor for Colorado Springs' families. Above, Julia Ferguson helps a young one carve a pumpkin for the holiday decorations.

Other events that have happened due to the influence of the RHA, include blockly study breaks, hall and house bar-b-ques to promote community spirit, and all campus parties, such as a Round the World dinner, that provided an alternative social outlet on this campus besides the Greek scene. RHA also did some educational programming to make people aware of issues that concern them such as date rape and AIDS awareness.

Colorado College is a residential campus for first through third year students, and though some people may think of the residence hall as just a place to sleep and maybe to study, the residence halls are much more than that. This year was the first full year of the Residence Hall Association - a group of student leaders taken from the residence halls - which has brought many activities to the halls, which make them a great place to live in.

The RHA had its offices in the basement of Ticknor Hall, as did Marriot, the food service representative on campus. Ticknor also had laundry facilities installed in its basement floor over the summer of 1990.

1990 was the year of the child, and that inspired the theme for the playhouse this year. The playhouse was the larger of the two theme houses - accomodating seventeen people.

The role of the child is important when considering the future of our society. The children of today will address the concerns of the environment and national political change tomorrow. But today's children have to grow up in a world of drugs, parental neglect and abuse, incest and molestation. The students of the Playhouse took it upon themselves to concentrate their attentions on the daily lives of children growing up first, especially the family unit, which is the primary source of education, often altered by crises.

The residents of the Playhouse, and other interested students who helped out, became a supplemental part of a needy child's development, fostering friendship and securtiy which may have been lacking before. Each member had their own child and family, whom they met with at least four hours a week, to develop their relationship. Every other weekend the whole house met with their children, and certain weekends were set aside to incorporate parents into activities, too. They sponsored hikes, athletic events, and arts and crafts projects.

These students also sponsored campus-wide education and involvement programs, introducing their theme to the communtiy first, and then sharing their experiences and provoking discussions. The also involved the community in family oriented entertainment, open to the public, with events such as story telling, magicians, plays, and movies.

The other, smaller, theme house this year was the Greenhouse, a sort of continuance of last year's Earthhouse, but unique in its own right. Smaller because they were easier to organize and insure commitment and dedication, yet large enough to form committees and break into smaller groups to get bigger projects accomplished. The students of this house were an environmentally active organization, dedicated to providing an openly accessible center for leading environmental consciousmess and motivating environmental action.

These students believed that fellow students' concerns about the environment can be encouraged and converted into action through a program combining examples of enthusiasm and direct leadership in that field. The residents of the Greenhouse provided that leadership by example on this campus.

Each resident was an ecologically concerned individual, aware of the many global threats to the environment. Many felt overwhelmed or powerless to act on their concerns, but as a group they united their visions, strengths, and motivation towards the necessary action in preservint the environment. This group organized cleanups, protests, beautification projects, and workshops which had a positive impact on the community.

The members of both theme houses fostered community spirit each block by spending time together as a house, through camping, cabin trips, or meals prepared and eaten together.

Montgomery Hall celebrated its centennial in 1990. The Residence Hall Association planned a special bar-b-que party to commemorate this event and welcome back old students in the fall. Built and furnished by the Women's Educational Society, Montgomery houses 25 upperclass women in single rooms and provides a homelike atmosphere for living, studying, meetings and entertaining. Montgomery is one of the most popular choices of residence for senior women choosing to live on campus, as it has been for one hundred years. HAPPY 100th BIRTHDAY, MONTGOMERY!

Slocum Hall

Slocum is an all first-year students residence hall. It is a co-ed dormitory by wings. Most students who live here there first year find that they have had a great experience, lots of fun, and met friends that will last the rest of their days here at CC.

Left: Building a loft often gives a double more space and sometimes even a neater look. Escepts for lofts on the first floor of Mathias, lofts must come down at the end of the year and are the property and responsibility of the students. Many students of all classes use lofts in their room for a greater effect.

Below: Lounges are great places to relax, enjoy, or study, though you can't guarantee that you'll get anything done there. Slocum has seven small lounges in addition to their television room and recreation room.

Not just a place to study and sleep

Left: A large part of residence hall living does not take place within the dormitories. Intramural sports, such as soccer, are an integral part of campus life. You can find these activities going on outside most afternoons in the fall and spring. A lot of people participate in this form of athletics, excerise and fun. Many teams are formed from wing members.

Right: Dining on campus comes with living on campus. One of the best parts of the cafeteria is the desert station. Ice cream must be served at every meal as a condition of Mrs. Bemis' donation to the college.

Below: Many people like to live on the top floor of the residence hall or house that they choose because it is quieter or at least more private. The only thing wrong with this, they say, is moving in and out at the beginning and end of the school year.

Above: Ever since phone jacks were installed in each of the rooms last year, it has been easier to get a hold of people. . . or at least their answering machines. But most students, like Susan Duncan, would agree that being able to have a conversation in the privacy of your own room is worth while.

The Student Admissions Represententatives were a select group of committed students who worked closely with the admissions office. They held tours of the campus for perspectives and their parents, hosted and escorted perspectives to classes and answered questions about the college while relating personal experiences to help students feel at home here when they visited. STAR Core was often the only exposure and contact perspectives had with the campus.

The Student/Alumni Association was a dedicated group of people who worked to keep student/alumni ties intact over distances after graduation. One of the many events S/AA helped sponsor was the homecoming activities, especially for the reunion classes. They helped with the bonfire rally and the tiger mascot too.

Kappa Alpha Theta

This year's Greek system bonded together and performed well. As a result of the all-college priorities report of the previous year, the whole greek system was under review, and under the threat of being banned from the campus. They were visible and in extra-curricular activities, community service projects and cooperated with Volunteer Action. There was much less separatism between groups. There was much participation and support for All Greek Week, from greeks and non-greeks alike. This year also saw the return of a Phi Delta Gamma House.

One senior said, "In the four years that I've been here, I've never seen the greeks cooperate as well as they did this year. It was impressive and it shows why I went greek."

New class created at CC

Signers find each other; work together

A new class was created this year. What kind of a class, you ask? It is a (silent pause) class. Didn't you hear me? I said it was a (another long silent pause) class. Oh, you haven't been yet. Well, this is the sign for sign language class (hands form L's, circle each other and then spread apart.)

The sign language class started out as just a club. Jim Capp, a worker at Rastall, taught it, and it was organized by students, Todd Burke and Sherri Prud'homme. There was so much interest and dedication that it was established as an adjucnt course that students could get credit for.

Most people see Jim at work, and he is very personable. What began as just a few people trying to get to know him better turned into a fun and exciting group learning and sharing experience. Now more people can communicate and understand the hearing impared better.

Self defense program continues

students empower themselves

Matt Bailey, a Colorado Springs local resident, taught a self-defense class twice a week. Participants varied from 3 to 25 people from class to class, but the core group was three.

These three students, who called themselves musketeers and ninjas, met one additional time by themselves during the week, to practice on their own.

At the end of the year, they were tested for the green belt, and all three passed. They were certified, and they all have a basic working knowledge of first level hand to hand combat.

Bailey has been here for the last six years, and often gives the self-defense talk at the beginning of the year for incoming freshpeople during new student orientation week. He also does workshops and lectures as part of residential life hall prgrams.

He has a non-traditional, "progressive" style of teaching. His system is his own, "maverick," as he incorporates more than one system. He relates it more to normal every day life and it practicality.

Bailey will continue this class next year, and both beginning and experienced people are welcome.

College improvements are useful and fun

Students develop necessary skills on new ropes course

There is a new addition to the Colorado College cabin facilities. A ropes course has been added to the mountain lodging that the college owns about twenty miles from the campus.

The cabin is used by many groups, from classes to organizations, to wings and just plain individual groups of friends. It is a popular place to go for a change of pace, whether to be inspired or just unwind.

The past couple of years, the cabin has also been the site of leadership retreats. The new ropes course, makes this choice of locations even more appealing.

Students learn to work together, from each other, leading and developing new ideas in a physically, as well as intellectually and emotionally stimulationg environment.

Volunteering Trend Continues

Students find that in giving they receive

More and more students are spending their spare time, what little they have of it anyway, volunteering of themselves in the community. They have found the unparalleled value of sharing their time and talents. Colorado College has improved its image and standing within the community and is not as isolated as it was before.

Students are finding oppurtunities to help with children, older people, differently abled persons, and the homeless, to name a few. Many new organizations are springing up to deal with concerns or needs. There is something for everyone. And a person can always work with a local church on their own, or start a group on campus with a bit of initiative.

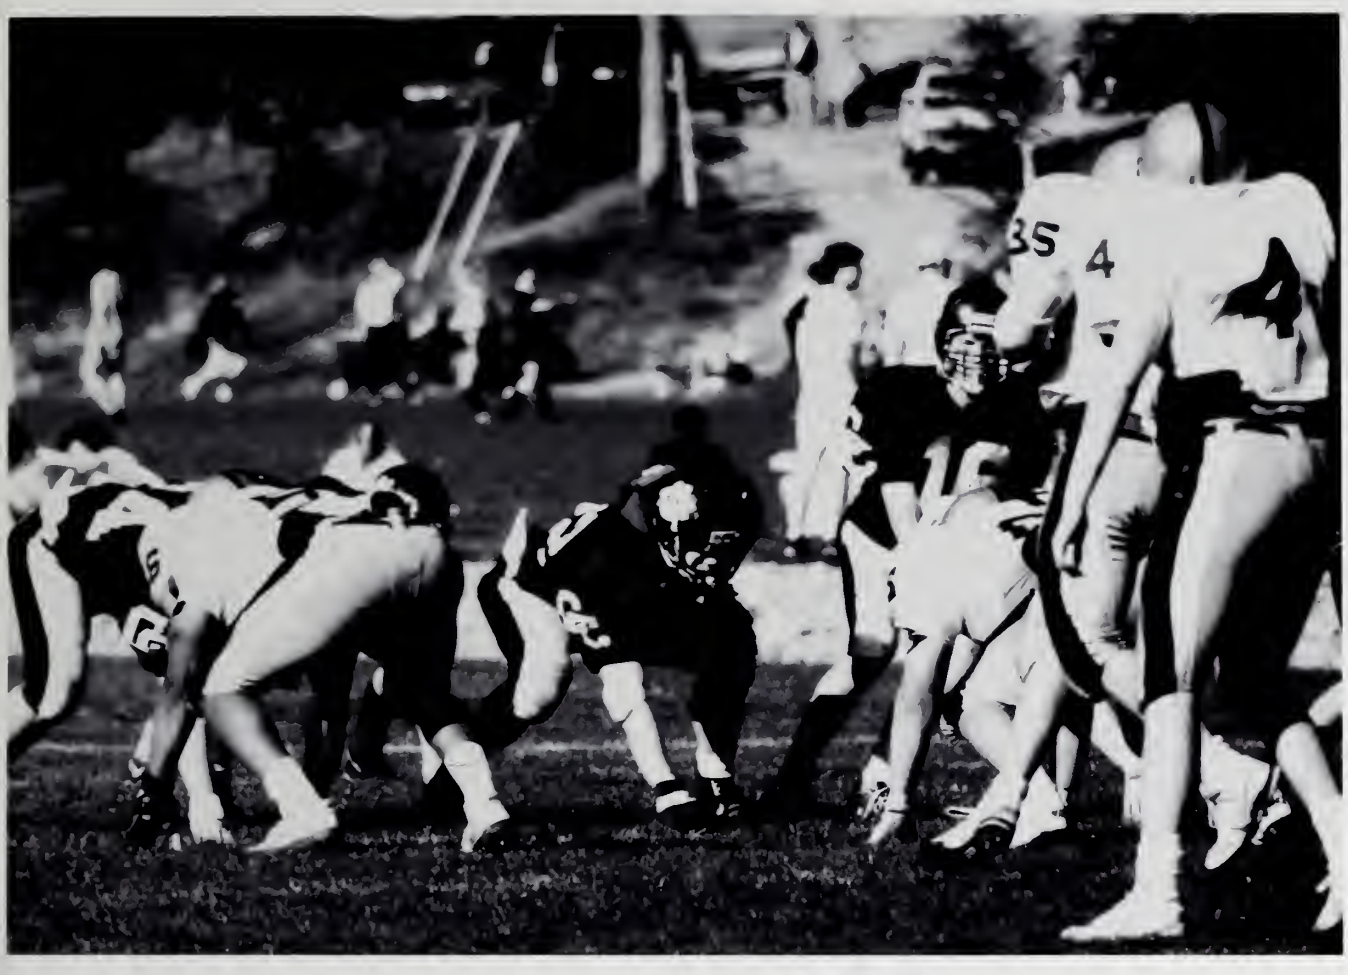

This was the second year that the Center for Community Service found it necessary to give out Community Service Awards, and already there were many deserving people who had to go officially unrecognized.

Men's Cross-Country
Nationals or Bust

For the greater part of recent history, the C.C. Men's Cross Country Team has been plagued with ill-fated National qualifying attempts; perennially poised, yet never quite there. Despite the team's faithful allegiance to tradition, this year proved different. With an uncanny sense of determination and pride, seasoned veterans Hehn, Judge, Macken, Pena, Schroeder, and Trachtenberg initiated promising pups Brian, Chris, James, Jerry, Mark, Nick, Pascal, and Sean to form the foundations of the most powerful running team ever assembled at this institution.

With the surprising early season additions of Matt Anderson, Tony Lees, and their special recruit, "Awesome" Dawson Farr, the 1990 team realized its full stature. Torre "Pogue" Pena set the tone for the year by winning the coveted Lakewood Basin. After surviving the brutal conditions of the Pueblan expanse, the team once again faced their cross-town rival, Division I Air Force, and boldly lost. Nevertheless, the claimed a respectable sixth place finish amidst a quality field of Division I athletes in an "oxygenless" battleground.

Despite nine personal records, the C.C. team missed winning their home invitational by only three points to rival U.S.C. Incited by this disappointmetn, Jim Macken led the charge to a third poace finish, both for himself and for the team at the Hastings Invitational in NE, which was followed by an even stronger showing at the prestigious Fort Hays Invitational (Kansas).

The next week, C.C. took an impressive second place at the Pre-Regional Wartburg Invitational meet (Waverly, Iowa). The Central Region NCAA Division III meet (Waverly) lay ahead as the final and ultimate challenge. Gleaning inspiration from wily alumni Paul Koch, the team commanded an all-out effort with each of the seven runner's posting season's best times - six of them, personal bests. The next week, the team placed fifteenth in the National meet, held in Grinnell, Iowa.

Coach Ted Casteneda said that this will be the season that the boys will remember. "Other teams will make it to the nationals, but this is the only team that will be able to say that they did it first." It was a highlight in his career.

With the return of six varsity runners, several strong varsity contenders, and the "Baron" Van Stone, the 1991 season promises further accomplishments, among them a possible Top-ten National ranking. The 1990 season produced thirteen lettermen, with special recognition awarded to Brian Kates (Most Improved Award), Dawson Farr (Rookie Award), Patrick Judge (Most Valuable Runner), and finally, Joel Trachtenberg (LVSIII Award). Coach Casteneda and the members of the 1990 team also honor and thank graduation seniors Dawson Farr, Tony Lees, and co-captain Erik Schroeder, as well as John "Feel Good" Merkel, an alumnus serviceman participating in Operation Desert Storm as of this writing.

One year studying abroad means to put up with many different things: a different language, a different currency, and different stamps. In addtition to that, coming to Colorado College means to get used to living in a small campus community and the unusual block system with all its pros and cons.: 3 1/2 endless weeks with even more reading and writing and seeing the same faces every day. But the beloved Block Break is more than a trade-off for that suffering. I will never forget what it feels like to trade the classroom for a car to spend the well-deserved four days in a tent, preferably in northern New Mexico.

Other things that I will always associate with my years at cC include fantastic ski trips, going to Denver, my first real American Thanksgiving and Halloween, Marriott Food Service,."if you don't like the weather, wait for two hours," the magnificent cultural program on campus,drinking yards and sining songs in the Golden Bee, The Simpsons, and Desert Storm, shopping at King Soopers for many doughnuts, small classes and friendly professors and administrative staff, long nights in the Tutt computer room, the nonexisting community in McGregor, Kaffeeklatsch in the German House, long stays in the French House, the #1 bus to North Academy, Christmas in Houston, snow at the grand Canyon, going to Albuquerque in a rental car, and many discussions about cross-cultural and international issues,T.K. and all the visiting profs. . .

It was a great year and I'd like to thank everybody who helped make it a success, especially my host-rents Cindy and Mike, Karine, David, Susi and Michael.

Words of Wisdom

In the fall of 1990 I chose to take the position of photography editor for The Nugget. It was not a hard choice. In fact, I received the "honorable" position because there was no one else willing to take the job. Still, I was excited at the possibility of being able to help design and develop this year's yearbook. I set as my goal a yearbook that would include a variety of people, events, and feelings that reflected The Colorado College 1990-1991.

Unfortunately, as the year progressed, less and less of my time was spent editing this year's yearbook. Instead, due to lack of photographers, I spent the majority of my time taking pictures. My duties were then laid upon Stephanie Ching, Chief Editor. I am thankful that she had enough time and patience to devote to putting together this year's yearbook.

So what's my point? Had there been greater student participation I would have had more time to do my job. I challenge future CC students that if you want your yearbook to be a true reflection of your years here at CC, you must make an effort to spend time working on the yearbook.

Lastly, for those of you who only have negative remarks to make about this year's yearbook, ask yourself: what did I contribute? If your answer is "nothing", then keep your comments to yourself. If you are one of the few who did make an effort to shape this year's yearbook, I thank you very much for caring enough to try to make a difference.

I recommend to future students that you try to make a difference in all that you do, especially in school. Your years here at CC are limited and they go by quickly. I suggest that you make the most of your undergraduate days by taking advantage of all that is offered by the school, your friends, and the community.

Sincerely,

Jacob W. Lawrence

The Many Faces of Stephanie M. Ching

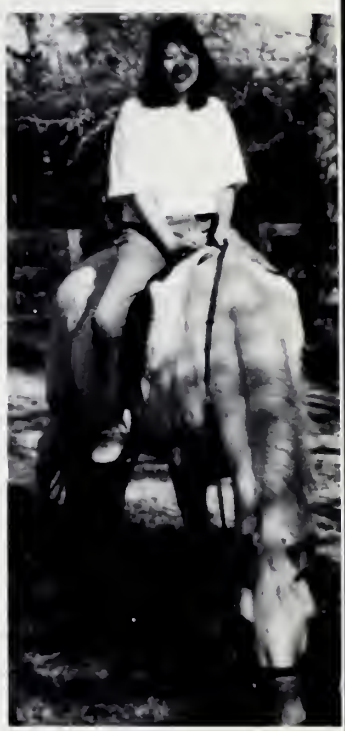

What a year! This was my senior year here at Colorado College and I have to say that it was my best, yet. To all of my fellow 1991 graduates, I hope it was the same for you. Being the crazy person that I am, I applied to edit the Nugget, this, my last, and most frenzied year at CC. I don't think I knew what I was getting into. It was a lot of hard work and late nights. But I have to admit that being the editor-in-chief of this wonderful publication helped make it such a great year. I can only hope that it brings as much pleasure to you as it did for me. Best of luck to you in the future, till we meet again.

I've been through a lot these past three years, and I've learned from them and enjoyed them. I would like to thank all my friends with whom I've ever had the good fortune to share this experience with. I'll always remember you. I don't think I can list you all here, and I know if I try I'll forget someone, so I won't. But you know who you are - my neighbors, classmates, lab partners, co-workers, and last, but not least, soccer team members. You're all winners. I love you!
